Inspired by A New Way to Bake, Martha's 87th book — available now, the eighth season of Martha Bakes takes you on a delicious and educational exploration of alternative ingredients in the modern pantry. New this season, Martha is joined by one expert each episode to teach viewers about the benefits, growth and production of these wholesome ingredients.

In each 30-minute episode of Martha Bakes, Martha will teach you the best ways to incorporate these more nutritious options into mouthwatering recipes such as farro chocolate-chunk cookies, whole-wheat monkey bread, buttermilk barley biscuits, rhubarb and raspberry rye crisp, and lemon-yogurt cupcakes.

"I'm very excited for viewers to learn about the modern baking pantry this season," said Martha Stewart. "I had such a wonderful time with each of the guest experts and really enjoyed being able to bring recipes from my recent book, A New Way to Bake, to life on the show to teach and inspire baking with healthy, natural ingredients. I am so pleased to continue partnering with our friends at Domino Foods and delighted to now also be working with Pyrex."

"Domino Foods, marketers of Domino and C&H Sugar have proudly sponsored Martha Bakes for several seasons. Watching the program grow and expand its audience and being part of that process has been very rewarding," said Brian O'Malley, President and CEO of Domino Foods, Inc.

"Martha Stewart is one of America's most trusted culinary experts and Pyrex is America's most trusted glass brand.
